KIMONO

Kimono is a traditional Japanese garment worn by women and girls. It is a loose-fitting, long-sleeved, floor-length robe, often with a decorative border. The kimono is typically made of silk, but other fabrics like cotton, wool, and synthetic materials are also used. The kimono is worn over a long-sleeved undergarment called a juban. The kimono is often worn with a sash called an obi. The kimono is a traditional part of Japanese clothing and is still worn today.
